FAIRMONT

The Owens Bottle Machine plant opened this morning after a shut-down of three days. The shut-down was due to a bad break in the Philadelphia gas pipe line. The pipe has been repaired. The gas from this line has been found to be insufficient for the needs of the Bottle Works. A gas producer plant started in the rear of the Bottle Works will not be finished for use this winter as was expected on account of lack of labor and materials. It has been decided to install an oil burner system in the factory and the different parts necessary are now on the way to Fairmont. The Bottle Works are going to use a system of their own and the parts such as tanks, pipes, etc., have been purchased from different cities. The producer plant will be finished just the same as soon as it is possible—will probably not be used until next winter now.

During the three days when the Bottle Works was closed the glass in the tanks froze and it took a day to get it into running condition again. Freezing molten glass does not mean the same as freezing water. When the glass becomes so hard it will not pour, it is called frozen though it registers 1500 degrees Fahrenheit.

A new bottle machine is going to be installed at the Bottle Works soon. An old one is going to be torn down. In cold weather in the lower part of the Bottle Works building, it is about ten degrees colder than out of doors. This is due to an immense draft which sweeps through the building.

The Bottle Works have just completed contract for five cars loads of bottles to contain peroxide. These bottles have been shipped to the John Bone Company.

It is interesting to note that forty or fifty per cent of bottles shipped from the Works go unpacked. They are packed neck to neck in the boxes, padding paper between each tier and they go as far as Seattle, Washington with little breakage. Whether they go in bulk or in crates is a matter of preference by those ordering bottles. Recently a firm ordered bottles in bulk and when great quantities of them began coming, piled high and unpacked, the firm wrote back—for pity's sake stop—so many bottles all at once with the problem of having them removed from the car looked to be a great undertaking. Bottles in crates require freight charges and bottles in bulk require a removing and hauling charge. Some want them one way and some another.

The Box Factory did not shut down during the zero weather though work was not quite up to time. The Box Factory have a service flag with three stars in the center. This flag hangs from the ceiling in the middle of the working room.

The Tank and Valve Works kept running in the cold weather though they are short on supplies due to delay in shipment of pig iron. For awhile they could not get coke but now have plenty of it. Since the government put a price on these articles it has become difficult to obtain them.

The Community House being built in East Park will be finished by the first of the year, it is hoped. This house will be used by the East Park Bible class, by the Boy Scouts for basketball, etc., and for community affairs in general. It contains a room thirty-two by sixty feet and is going to be a very attractive building. It is being built through subscription funds. Most of the work has been done by carpenters who have donated their work.

A school-house is being built at both Idamay and Carolina mines. At one of them a dwelling has been used for a school-house and at the other an old school-house has been temporarily used. The new buildings are of brick and are being used by the Board of Education, Lincoln district.

A four room residence has just been built at West Chester for Amos McFee. Also one for F. M. Langford. One has been built for Larry Matteo at Norway beyond the Country Club.

Forty-five houses have just been completed at Downs under three different contracts for the Rachel Gas Coal Company.

John R. Watkins has just finished a school-house at Hutchinson, also one on Booth's Creek.

The West End Improvement Company have just finished a residence this side of Edgmont on this side of the concrete bridge.

John R. Watkins has recently finished a residence for Mr. Communtie at Edgway. It is built of brick veneer—one layer of brick on the outside and an inside stud wall.

The Hentry glass factory are running three shops now. The boys are being paid piece work and can make from 2,500 to 3,000 glass eggs a day. They start working at six o'clock and stop when they please. This factory was shut down a week on account of cold weather. There is a lack of labor there.

Word to the Wise.

A little girl was just recovering from an attack of scarlet fever and the first day she was able to sit up she said: "Mamma, I guess I'll ask papa to buy me a baby carriage for my dollies." Her mother, aged five, overheard the remark and exclaimed: "Well, you'd better strike him for it right away, for if you wait till you get well you may not get it."

New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The week cheer before Christmas, usually one of good cheer in Wall street, opened with a resumption, of liquidation high grade securities continuing to recede to well-nigh incredible levels.

Reports from Washington intimating that the important question of federal supervision of railroads might remain in abeyance over the holidays added to the depression prevalent in banking and other quarters.

Increased weakness of bonds, as evidenced by lower quotations for Anglo-French 4's and various domestic rails and industrials, gave fresh emphasis to the complete abstention of investment inquiry.

Rallies of 1 to 3 points occurred in the active final hour, restoring some issues to last week's final prices, while a few industrials and rails scored nominal gain.
